

Dear Spelt Member,

Assalam o Alaikum

I am delighted to thank you all for the overwhelming response of July's Academic session. Your enthusiastic participation and feedback always encourage us to invite best trainers for you. I hope you will join with the same zeal this month and learn research skills to become a teacher researcher and give back to the community through your research work.

Action Research: A Step Forward in Your Teaching Career

Conducting an action research in regular classrooms can be a rewarding experience for teachers and can lead to new ideas and strategies to promote students' success. It is a common thought that the research could only be done by scientists or learned professors. However, it is a fact that research can be done by all classroom teachers teaching at any level.

In this academic session, the trainer will try to ignite the interest of participants to do action research as part of their regular classroom teaching. By the end of the session each participant will feel empowered enough to conduct an action research on their own, which may be presented or published in an educational conference or journal.

Dr. Maliha Ahmed, Masters in School Leadership from Australian Catholic University has presented at Educational Conferences and written for Educational Journals. She is a member of SPELT and has been presenting at the SPELT International Conferences. She has actively been involved in professional development training programmes. Dr. Ahmed is presently serving as Director Programmes at Happy Home School.
