

Strategies for Providing Effective Feedback and Copy Checking

Effective feedback is a crucial component of teaching and learning. Teachers must increase their ability to provide students with constructive feedback, which should include suggestions on how to make their work even better. The ultimate aim of learning must be kept in mind, as well as the methods that might be used to help pupils get there. Teachers must therefore be knowledgeable with what helpful feedback looks like and the different types of feedback strategies in order to accomplish this.

In this webinar, Assessment for Learning (AFL) and Assessment of Learning (AOL) strategies related to giving effective feedback during the presentation and practice stage of a lesson will be discussed. Special focus will be on the production and post-production stages of a lesson. We will look at how teachers can check copies and give effective feedback through it. Also, we will explore how copy-checking has an impact on students' learning behaviour. Emphasis will be on qualitative checking guidelines and checklists for achieving the learning outcomes.
