

From Brainstorming to Proofreading-Teaching Essay Writing Skills to ESL Learners

Learning essay writing skills is inevitable for school, college as well as university students so that they can confidently communicate their ideas in writing. If the existing writing instructions are not bringing positive results, then it is high time for teachers to reconsider their approach, making it more comprehensive and practical. Teachers need to discuss with their students the common essay types and guide them through the entire writing process accordingly from brainstorming to revising the final product. This webinar, therefore, focuses on guiding participants on how to teach essay writing skills to their ESL learners. They will be equipped with effective strategies for both face-to-face and online instruction, so they can stimulate their students to develop such skills and become proficient writers in order to succeed academically and beyond.
