

AI beyond the Teaching Assistant

AI literacy is a critical digital skill for the Gen Z classroom. This workshop goes beyond the basics, introducing teachers to advanced AI tools that can be integrated into their teaching practices. Participants will explore innovative applications of AI, from enhancing student engagement to creating custom chatbots. This session aims to equip educators with the knowledge to leverage AI as a transformative tool in education, far beyond its role as a mere assistant.

Audience: Middle School Teachers and Above

Nooruddin Merchant began his professional journey as a software programmer, later transitioning into education to facilitate the integration of library and media technologies in K-12 systems. With over 20 years of diverse experience in education, learning, and development, he has worked extensively on projects during their early stages, driving them toward successful implementation. Nooruddin has collaborated with NGOs and local development organizations, bringing his expertise to various educational initiatives. As an independent trainer, he has designed and conducted workshops for teachers, educators, school managers, librarians, and computer instructors across prominent institutions, including Aga Khan University's Institute for Educational Development (AKU-IED), Professional Teachers Association Network (PTAN), Teachers Resource Centre (TRC), Beaconhouse School System, SPELT, Aga Khan Education Service, Pakistan (AKES,P), and Educational Resource Development Centre (ERDC). He is one of the founding staff of the Habib University and is currently leading Library and Information Commons.
