

FREE ACADEMIC SESSION FOR TEACHERS

AMPLIFYING LANGUAGE LEARNING THROUGH PODCASTS

Podcasting has emerged as a dynamic tool for transforming language classrooms into spaces of creativity, collaboration, and innovation. This webinar explores how podcasts empower English Language Learners (ELLs) by amplifying their voices, fostering authentic communication, and cultivating essential 21st-century skills. Participants will gain practical insights into integrating podcasting into diverse learning contexts, from designing engaging classroom activities to guiding students through the process of creating their own podcasts. By highlighting models of effective practice and step-by-step strategies, the session demonstrates how podcasting not only motivates learners but also nurtures critical thinking, digital literacies, and learner autonomy. Educators will leave with concrete ideas to enrich their teaching practice and inspire students to connect language learning with real-world expression.

Dr. Iram Farid, a proud SPELT member, is a seasoned English language educator with over 25 years of experience in teaching, curriculum design, and academic leadership. She has trained and mentored teachers through webinars, workshops, and presentations at institutions including UET, King Abdul Aziz University, and the University of Jeddah. With expertise in EFL, EAL, ESP for medical professionals, and digital literacies, she advocates innovative strategies such as podcasting, blended learning, and learner-centered approaches. Renowned for her dynamic teaching style, Dr. Farid continues to inspire learners and educators through her commitment to inclusive and transformative education.
