35 Years of
Empowering
Teachers

With the rapid growth in the field of educational technology especially in language teaching, pedagogies, pedagogues, and the learners have undergone a radical transformation over decades. This technological transformation in language teaching has revolutionized the teaching and learning process. However, the biggest change that this transformation has brought is the digital divide between the learner and the educator in the field of English language teaching. Our learners expect teachers to be aware of their digital world and its constitutions. They expect their teachers to teach the way they learn. I think expecting a pedagogical change is the right of this digital generation.

This professional development training focuses on English language teachers and administrators who are interested in using technology effectively in the classroom. In this hands-on workshop, language teachers and administrators will be able to take hold of some alternative ways of integrating technology to meet their daily instructional goals.

Objectives

By the end of this workshop, the participants will be able to:

- articulate the learning and teaching needs of the current digital generation
- understand the effective integration of technology in their classrooms
- adapt their course content using the cutting-edge technology
- develop activities that would engage language learners effectively using technology
