

FREE WEBINAR FOR ENGLISH TEACHERS

CRITICAL THINKING IN ELT

Although my students are passing their exams with flying colors, are they learning? Many of us fall into this common dilemma. In one way, this dilemma represents a long-standing debate about education's purpose; is it to teach knowledge or enable students to think and learn?

Given the rapid-changing world, how can we help our students to perform better in it? One way is to nurture those students who can think for themselves and therefore adapt according to the ever-changing environment.

The participants of this session will take an experiential approach to understand critical thinking and the required practices to make their learners critical thinkers in a language classroom.

Mr. Fasih Raza is a passionate English language teacher with experience on different fronts, teaching young learners to teaching adults and teacher training. Currently, he is working as a Coordinator, English Language in THE SET SCHOOL. Besides a degree in Education, Mr. Fasih has done ICELT and DELTA (M1). To polish his skills further, he is also doing MSc TESOL at a distance from the University of St Andrews, Scotland.
