The Education System worldwide has undergone several changes during the past 2 to 3 years. All stakeholders in education including the school management, teachers and learners have faced several challenges during the past 2 years in terms of adjusting to the new reality. The biggest challenge, however, has remained in adjusting to the online and onsite modes of learning simultaneously. Those educators who were not well versed with technology previously prior to the pandemic COVID-19 got affected the most.

Technology is not an alternate solution to learning, however, its integration in the onsite classrooms in different ways can help educators save time and energy and bring innovation in teaching and course design. This can also help in engaging learners in constructive activities by utilizing various free online digital platforms. The biggest advantage of using these freely available resources is that educators can plan creative lessons in less time, design creative assignments to monitor progress and customize free online rewards which can be downloaded and printed easily. This maximizes student engagement and ensures retention of concepts taught using different digital tools. It is a seamless blend of fun and learning that makes learning happen in an interesting and meaningful way. This hands-on session will help educators of all grade levels and subjects to explore at least 3 to 4 digital tools to design activities, assignments, and rewards.
